Providing an Exceptional Employee Experience for the Remote Workforce

C.H. Robinson solves logistics problems for companies across the globe and across industries, from the simple to the most complex. With technology built by and for supply chain experts they bring faster, more meaningful solutions to their customers. C.H. Robinson and Intel collaborate to develop track-and-trace technology for companies to monitor their goods in transit as well as work to help improve and modernize the remote work experience for C.H. Robinson employees. Developed with mobile centered features like performance, long battery life, security, and remote PC management technology at the forefront, C.H. Robinson chose the Intel® Evo™ vPro® platform to give the company's global workforce an exceptional mobile experience.

"The employee experience with this new platform has been great from the start. We decided on the 11th Gen Intel Evo vPro Platform as we transition to a more mobile based workforce. And with our global presence, we felt it imperative that we standardize on a single platform that we can use globally."
